The success story continues

A Swiss marriage – one year on from the merger of Gangloff Cabins and BMF Group AG

Around a year ago the Bartholet Group extended its range by merging with Gangloff Cabins and consequently became a full service provider in the fields of cable car construction, amusement park facilities, cabin construction, road network systems and special constructions. Gangloff Cabins is an independent company in the market for all customers and will continue to be so in the future. Following the merger with BMF, Gangloff Cabins consistently continued to fill the order books and is looking positively in to 2015.

Products

Gangloff Cabins continues to draw on its technical expertise and develop customised aerial tram cabins, funicular railway cars and special productions. Cable car cabins are also built at the traditional company in Bern and Gangloff Cabins plans to further increase work in this area in the future. Using refined technology in the modular system, different sized cabins for 4 to 10 people can be produced efficiently. In addition, a new and innovative generation of cabins is in development.

Gangloff Cabins also produces special solutions: Sightseeing gondola „North Star“ on the cruise ship „Quantum of the Seas“

Future enhancement

Gangloff Cabins has already taken important steps today to ensure that it can provide its customers with optimal service in the future. In order to optimally shape future succession plans, the management team has been expanded with competent specialists in the areas of project business for new productions as well as in customer service and the supply of spare parts. In the medium term, it is the job of former owner Marc Pfister and the former Production Manager and today's Customer Service Manager, Heinz Arn, to lead.
